Parliament.

Chamber of Senators.

On Wednesday, after some routine business had been transacted, the discussion of the Bill respecting notarial diplomas was resumed.

Sr. Costa made a lengthy speech, putting forward a substitutory Bill.

After some discussion the original Bill was put to the vote in general and was approved. The discussion in detail followed at once. Sr. Costa made another lengthy speech, and, on Art. 1 being put to the vote, it was resolved to return the Bill to the Committee of Legislation for alteration.

The Bill concerning the compulsory use of the Metric Decimal system was then brought forward. Sr. Stewart opposed it on the grounds that it would cause disturbance and inconvenience to business during a period of exceptional trial. Sr. Herrera y Obes combatted this idea, but acknowledged that the Bill must be postponed. It was finally resolved to postpone the consideration of the Bill, and the sitting then terminated.

Fire at Sandy Point.

(We cut the following from the B. A. Standard, which says the news arrived through this city, but this is the first we have heard of it.)

Advices have arrived in Montevideo of a terrible conflagration in the rising town of Sandy Point, which we may apply call the capital of the Straits of Magellan, a place of far more importance than Argentine statesmen think, and we have it from Mr. Bridges, the Tierra del Fuego missionary who left there the other day for his estancia, that within the last few years Punta Arenas and all the country around about there has improved more rapidly than many districts in the provinces of the Argentine Republic. The sheep farms stretch along the S. E. coast in such number and such success that in a very few years there will be an unbroken line of sheep "puestos" from the Rio Negro to the Straits of Magellan.

We have yet no particulars of how the conflagration began, but we know that it held only for two hours and during that short time the church, the Government House, the barracks, the public offices and a number of merchants, stores close to the Argentine Consulate were all burnt down; and it seems that the whole place would have been left in ashes but for the praiseworthy exertions of Messrs Menendez, merchants of that town; of the Argentine Consul, Lieut. Gregory Aguerreberry, and of the officers and crew of the Chilean men-of-war in the port. We expect by the next steamer from the Straits fuller details of this great disaster.

The Liquidation of the English Bank. We translate below the petition, only published yesterday, of the Liquidators of the English Bank, in application for a renewal of the moratorium. The Message of the Executive which accompanied the same to the Chambers was of a purely formal character and did not contain any recommendation either for or against the petition. This we do not think necessary to reproduce.

English Bank of the River Plate (in Liquidation).

Montevideo, June 20, 1892.

To the Interim Minister of Finance, Sr. E. J. Madalena.

Mr. Minister,

The Liquidating Committee of the English Bank has the honor of presenting to you the Statement of the Liquidation of the same up to May 31 last, and to propose the adequate means of terminating it, without the serious losses which would be caused, under present circumstances, by the judicial liquidation to which it would be forced to recur at the expiration of the term, already approaching, of the moratoria conceded by the special Act of 1st of August last.

The accompanying tables will show you the following:—According to the balance drawn up in July, 1891, just after the suspension of payments, the liabilities of the Bank amounted to $11,282,235.79, and according to the balance of May 31 last, the said liabilities were reduced to $7,482,761.08, thus resulting a diminution of $3,797,474.71. This sum is composed as follows:—

Liquidated by general means in bills and values
$ 4,317,854.49
2,481,020.22
Total Liquidated
$ 3,797,474.71

To the amount liquidated there must also be added the following:—
Compensable accounts, about bills placed in London
1,129,000
Total to be added
$ 2,234,000

Of the sum represented by "compensable accounts," it is hoped, but not quite certain, to arrange the entire amount. The amount of $1,129,000 for Bills, represents the estimate of those which it is already known will not be claimed in this liquidation.

Thus, taking into account the sums already liquidated, (and those considered compensable, there results a total of $6,083,000, arranged or about to be arranged in the ten months expired of this liquidation.

According to the accompanying Statement, the remainder of the liabilities of the Bank, the above deductions having been made, is reduced to $2,285,000, including all obligation for Bills drawn upon Europe, in the supposition that they may come into this liquidation; should they not do so, the purely local liability hardly reaches $1,382,000.

It should be remarked that from the preceding calculation there has been deducted the sum of $1,148,877.39, represented by obligations in Bills to collect and bonds deposited, which amount exists in the Bank and will be handed over in specie after the corresponding arrangements.

Meanwhile, to respond to and solve the obligations to be met in cash, thus reduced, in all cases, to $2,285,000, the Bank possesses assets in landed properties, mortgages, bonds and shares, portfolio values and other accounts, forming a total of $6,833,000, which value realised at an average of less than 40% would suffice to cover all the liabilities.

But unfortunately the profound crisis which afflicts the market, the palpable depreciation of all values, the depression in production, and other notorious causes, continue to make impossible the realisation of the assets, and there is no hope of carrying it out within the term of the moratorium conceded, not even if the Bank went to the extremity of selling its properties at a miserable price, which to-day would only contribute to the considerable prejudice of its debtors and would increase still more the depression afflicting the market.

The experience acquired during the past ten months of assiduous labour, in respect of the difficulties of the situation, the frequent ineffectuality of the efforts and the attempted combinations; the conviction that the operations, when not entirely fruitless, would frequently lead to the ruinous extremity of the failure of the debtors; and lastly the example of the similar serious obstacles with which institutions of less importance and extension than this Bank have to contend with in their liquidation, impose upon this Committee the duty of anticipating what may happen after the termination of the mandate confided to them by the Law.

Certainly the reconstruction of the Bank recently carried out in London by a Company called the "New English Bank of the River Plate" offers the prospect that with the aid of new capital it may fulfil the engagements contracted with its creditors. But your judgement will easily understand that for this new institution to take command of the situation of this Branch, to aid the termination of arrangements commenced and to adopt other equally important resolutions, it is certainly necessary to count on more time than was disposable within the moratorium conceded, as the said Company has frequently insisted upon.

In this situation, and convinced that by this step general convenience would be consulted, the Liquidating Committee hastens to beg you to entertain from the Legislative Chambers the prolongation for another year of the term fixed by the Act of August 1, 1891, for the liquidation of the English Bank of the River Plate, in the understanding that the said term will be employed in forwarding the task and terminating it with all possible brevity.

A considerable part of the assets and liabilities being to-day liquidated, the emission being nearly all converted, and the arrangement of many accounts being in an advanced stage, the Committee furthermore points out that the honorarium of the new liquidators may be fixed in accordance with what has recently been practised in similar cases, and at the same time as the legislative sanction is issued, it shall be determined to proceed in conformity with the prescriptions of Art. 1 of the Act of August 1, 1891, and Art. 2 of the reglamentary Decree.

Before concluding, the Committee does not hesitate to assert that in its judgment, the fresh delay imposed by the gravity of present circumstances can not be accepted less than willingly in every conception bound to it by negotiations previous to the suspension of payments, since the reconstruction of the establishment, permitting it to fulfil its engagements or make equitable arrangements in a relatively short time, would certainly redound to the benefit of all.

The Committee takes this opportunity of reiterating their respects.—J. A. Gomez.—Alfonso Garcia Lagos.—J. MacCrimble.

H. H. Leng, Account.

(Note. We copy the above as we found it in yesterday's Siglo and Razon, but there is an obvious confusion in the form of the last statement. The intention, however, is evident.)
North-Western of Uruguay Railway.
The eleventh ordinary general meeting of the North-Western of Uruguay Railway Company, Limited, was held Monday, June 13, at Winchester House, Old Broad-street, E.C., Mr. Charles Grey Mott presiding.

The Secretary (Mr. J. D. Kennedy) having read the notice convening the meeting.

The Chairman said: Gentlemen, it now becomes my duty to move that the report and accounts now presented to the meeting be received and adopted. I make this motion on this occasion with a somewhat disheartened feeling. Eight years ago this railway was an isolated piece of line about 60 or 70 miles in length, and its expenses at that time exceeded its income. We set to work, and, by dint of hard work and a good deal of anxiety, we got that line completed. We have got it joined up with a complete system to Montevideo, and with a further branch to the Brazilian frontier from one of our stations, and we have made it by that means a part of our system. Of course, these lines, as you know, were carried out by independent companies, but they were more or less aided in the first instance by this company. Having done all this, and having raised our receipts from about £17,000 a year to £47,000, we had some hopes that the long-suffering shareholders of this company would at last be receiving an adequate return for their money. Unfortunately, our eight years work has been thrown back by the action of the Government in repudiating one-half of their guarantee, and by the collapse of credit in the River Plate districts, which has made so serious an inroad upon our traffic during the last year. The only comfort that we can find is that the directors, but from the sins of the Governments of South America. In the new arrangement with the Government, the amount of the guarantee to be received from them, together with the interest on the bonds which we hold, is just sufficient to pay our debenture interest, and very little more. We have, therefore, to look for any return to the shareholders, entirely to the earnings of the line in the future. You know that the past year has been a very unfortunate one. We are not the only railway company that has suffered heavily by it; but things are looking brighter, and our traffics at last are showing a tendency to increase again. The customs receipts of Uruguay are also considerably increasing, and altogether there is a much more favourable condition of things throughout the whole of the River Plate. We hope, therefore, that we have turned the corner again, and that our receipts in the future will go up steadily and not have this serious reaction from which we have suffered in the last year. You will see that in our net revenue account there is a balance of £41,393 16s. 10d. brought down to the credit of that account; unfortunately, it is only an accountant's statement, and from that has to be deducted the whole of the loss which we suffer from the bonds of the Government of Uruguay being paid to us at a price twice their market value. The Government were owing us in absolute cash, as you will see by the balance-sheet, some £69,444 15s. and for that they have paid us bonds which, if sold at the present market price, will result in a loss of nearly £30,000, which has to be taken from the £41,000. It is very unfair on their part, not only to reduce our guarantee for the future by one-half, but to pay the arrears of the guarantee in bonds which they know are worth very little more than half the nominal price. That is our present position; we cannot help it. The matter was settled without our assent, and we really had no option whatever. As I explained to you at the last special meeting, we were obliged to accept it, but I cannot help making a last protest against such treatment as this. We have been doing all we can to develop the country, and we are met with treatment like this. If you deduct £30,000 from the £41,000, it leaves about £11,000 or £12,000, which is equal to the 2 per cent dividend which we propose should be paid. As regards receipts, our passengers have decreased in number 4,276, and in money £2,870. Our goods traffic has decreased £9,450 and sundry receipts £1,435. That arises from the fact that we were doing certain work last year which does not appear in this account.

The result is a net decrease of £13,020 in the year, and we have tried to meet that as far as we could by a diminution of expenses. There is an increase in the law charges of £146, which is due to some expenses in Uruguay which could not be avoided. Then there is an increase of £395 in the maintenance of the way and works. If we had kept the accounts as they used to be kept this would have shown a considerable decrease, but I have explained on more than one occasion that when this company first took over the affairs of the old Montevideo Company, some eight or nine years ago there was a certain sum fixed that should be spent out of capital to put the line, which was then in a very poor state of repair, in proper order. That had to be done for a great many years, and the expenses have been charged from year to year, in accordance with that arrangement against the capital of the company. We thought, however, after a certain period had expired, that it was time this was put an end to, and that all charges of that kind should in future go against the revenue of the company. The result is that this alteration came into force last year, and the whole of the expenses connected with the repairing and renewal of the line have been charged against the revenue of the year; so that we have the satisfaction of feeling that our capital account has not been increased during the year, even if we have suffered a little in the revenue. The internal debt of the Republic, as you are aware, from the statement we made at the special meeting, is being consolidated, and we are taking measures to carry out the authority which you gave us at that meeting to convert our £1,200,000 bonds into the general internal debt of the Republic. This has been delayed because the trustees required that the sanction of the court should be given to the paring by them of the bonds for that purpose; but I hope that sanction will be obtained within the next few days, when the bonds will be sent out and duly converted. As regards the prospects of this railway, there is no doubt that the most important thing we have to look to is the question of colonisation along the line. We have discussed this matter year after year at our annual meetings, and I have told you my views upon it. A company, as you know, was formed, called the Uruguay Land and Development Company, which bought land at one of our stations, and the cattle colony is going on satisfactorily. We are very anxious that colonisation should be carried out in the same way at other stations along our line, and we are trying to make some arrangement with that object in view. The one thing that is wanted in Uruguay at the present moment is an increase of the colonisation and the turning of the land from the cattle rancho into the cultivated farm. A large area of vines has been planted along our lines, and I am glad to say that the reports this year are that there is a very large harvest of grapes. We hope that that may go on, and produce us additional traffic in that direction. I do not know that I need detain you any further, beyond congratulating you, at all events, that we have been able to keep up, amidst all our difficulties, the payment of our debenture interest. We had to delay the payment of a portion of it during the last half-year, but it has now all been paid, and the present half-year's will be paid punctually the day after to-morrow. At all events, we have not been called upon to make any deficit in that respect, like some of our neighbours. There was a very interesting speech delivered by the chairman of the Brazil Great Southern Railway the other day, and I am glad to find that there is every prospect of that line being further extended. It has not brought us a very large amount of traffic yet, but as it goes northward the volume is likely to increase, and I hope we shall derive from that source, as well as from the other railway connections as they gradually develop, an increased traffic, which will, I hope, prove to be of a very permanent character. Altogether, despite the difficulties we have had to encounter, I think I may say that we are not by any means without hope for the future. We shall do all we can to encourage and develop the traffic, so that, even after all the Government have done for us, we may help ourselves out of our difficulties. (Applause.) I beg, therefore, to move: That the report now presented to the meeting, together with the statement of accounts and balance-sheet for the year ending December 31, 1891, be received and adopted.

Mr. Arthur Holland seconded the motion, and said that the returns showed a decided improvement in the trade of this country with South America.

In reply to questions, the Chairman said the international bridge was not a business matter, but a political matter, and the company was powerless to act. Owing to their connection with the Midland and Uruguay Railway, the cattle traffic was improving.

The report was adopted, and a dividend at the rate of 2 per cent. for the period ended December 31, 1891, was declared on the first preference stock, in lieu of the dividend of 3 per cent., declared at the ordinary general meeting of June 8, 1891.

Messrs. E. R. Pearce Edgcombe and G. H. Kearton were re-elected directors, and Mr. C. G. Hyde (the auditor) was reappointed.

SUNDRIES.

—We call attention to the very interesting speech of the Chairman of the N. Western of Uruguay Railway, reproduced to-day. He says "The one thing that is wanted in Uruguay at the present moment is an increase of the colonisation and the turning of the land from the cattle rancho into the cultivated farm." This is the very doctrine we have recently been preaching. We hope that Government, and especially its organ the Nacion, will note his remarks about the Colonisation Scheme, and the dishonesty with which the true developers of the country have been treated. In this he echoes the disgust felt by all the unfortunate creditors of "fraudulent Uruguay," and especially by the railway companies, which have been unanimous in their expression.

—The business in the Chamber of Senators on Wednesday, was of no interest. The Deputies did not attempt to sit.

—The ordinary sessions of the Chambers come to an end to-day, and every one is anxiously awaiting the long announced Presidential Message, which, we presume, will at last be made public. There is also some anxiety to know what subjects will be included in the Convocation to Extraordinary Sessions, that is to say if such Convocation is issued.

—The Bill concerning the extended moratorium applied for by the Liquidators of the English Bank, is before the Finance Committee of the Representatives. The Liquidators were summoned before the Committee yesterday afternoon to give some explanations on the nature of which the report of the Committee would much depend. At the time of writing the result had not transpired.

—It is noteworthy that although the petition for a new moratorium was only notified to the public last Friday, July 8, it bears date June 20. It would be interesting to know why the secret was so jealously guarded during the three weeks intervening. Were the liquidators afraid the creditors might take steps to oppose or defeat their proposition?

—The first class passengers arrived by the R. M. S. "Tamar" on Wednesday were Mr. and Mrs. Humphrey Chamberlain and servants, and Sr. J. C. Uranga. Mr. Chamberlain, who is completely restored to health, has been warmly welcomed by his numerous friends in this city, as also his esteemed wife.

—The next mail due is by the P. S. N. Co's. "Lusitania" due on Monday, with London dates to June 21 and supplementary mails to June 25.

—The crisis has not been without its depressing effects on our French neighbours, whose celebration yesterday of their grand anniversary was much less lively than usual, whilst the display of the French flag was much less than we have ever noticed before on that date.

We note that a new English daily paper to be called the Argentine Times in announced for appearance in Buenos Aires on August 1. We presume this is the "unloading" organ the mere announcement of which frightened the Standard out of its wits.

On account of bad times, the Caridad Committee has resolved for the present to suppress the Lotteries of $50,000, and instead play one of $10,000 at only $2.50 the entire ticket.

Mr. Chiene, the Professor of Surgery in Edinburgh University, has the reputation of being one of the most painstaking and delicate operators in Britain, thoughtful of the patient and careful in the clinic. One day, in the course of a clinical demonstration, he turned to a student who had just commenced his studies with the question: "Now, sir, can you tell me what is wrong with my dressing?" The ingenious youth turned red and preserved a discreet silence. Mr. Chiene, however, was not to be put off, and repeated the question. After a long pause, the youth stammered out, in a fit of desperation: "Well, sir, if you insist on my telling you, I should say your tie is not quite straight!"

The B. A. Standard of Wednesday reproduces part of our article of last Saturday about the Liquidation of the English Bank. Whilst acknowledging the compliment our contemporary thus pays us, we would point out that in thereproduction, the latter part of the article has been so cut and mutilated as to lose much of its force and meaning. Of course our contemporary has a perfect right to do this, but in that case it should also acknowledge the fact and not present to its readers as original and complete a mangled and perverted version, which only misrepresents our ideas and does us an injustice. We call our contemporary's attention to this, as the complaint is not new.

The conduct of the Standard reminds us of an old but little known theatrical anecdote. Many years ago, when English musical drama was popular and Sims Reeves in the first flush of fame, he was called upon to undertake the part of Francis Osbaldiston in an adaptation of "Rob Roy," at Covent Garden Theatre. Now the eminent tenor liked singing but objected to the acting portion of the part, and therefore obtained permission from the manager to shorten the dialogue allotted to him, in other words "to cut the cackle." This he did in the simplest manner possible by drawing his pen through the latter half of each speech, without much consideration for the sense. Amongst his lines was one—"Rashleigh is my cousin, but, wherefore I know not, he is my bitter enemy." On the evening of the performance the audience was much amused by hearing the temporary Francis declare, in silvery tones, "Rashleigh is my cousin, but wherefore I know not." The Standard has dealt with our article in very similar fashion and with a not dissimilar result.

The result of the general election up to Wednesday evening is telegraphed as 245 for Salisbury and 227 for Gladstone. The latter has been re-elected for Midlothian by a majority under 700, and some sensation has been caused by so narrow a triumph. The final result is still entirely doubtful, but it already seems certain that the Conservatives will not have a working majority, if they have one at all. They have already lost 35 seats.

A New York telegram announces the death of Mr. Cyrus West Field, merchant and millionaire. He was intimately connected with the laying of the Atlantic cable between Gt. Britain and Newfoundland, with the Elevated Railways of New York, and other gigantic enterprises.

A disgraceful affair occurred in Calle Washington on Wednesday evening. Dr. Lapeyre, Historical Lecturer in the University, was attacked by two students whom he had rejected in an examination, and one of them struck him heavily over the head with a stick. The young blackguards were quickly arrested and we hope will be severely punished. The police, according to recent instructions, conceal their names, which is a shameful thing, for they ought to be exposed.

There is a painful rumour current that, after all the imposing fuss made, the Centenary Celebration will result in a fiasco, the Committee being about to resign, not being able to obtain from Government the funds voted for the purpose, $20,000. Coas del pais.

It is said that on account of the prolonged stagnation on the Bolsa and the little hope of early improvement, several leading brokers think of emigrating to Buenos Aires.

It is telegraphed that cholera has appeared in epidemic form in Alexandria.

The survivors of the Argentine torpedo chaser "Rosales" were landed here yesterday morning in a pitiable state, all suffering greatly from exhaustion and exposure. They were received by the Argentine Minister, Dr. Moreno, and lodged in the Hotel Europa where every attention is being paid them. The account given of the loss of the vessel is substantially confirmed. There is little hope of the salvation of the remainder of the crew, unless some of them have been picked up by an ocean going vessel.

BUENOS AIRES
—Dr. Saenz Peña has been interviewed respecting his utterances concerning the foreign debt, which, he says, have been misunderstood, as he had no intention to say that it would be necessary to reduce the interest on the debt. He suggests that the foreign bond holders should send a commission here to investigate the financial condition of the Republic, with the view of coming to some arrangement which will be satisfactory to both creditor and debtor—a very difficult matter!

Mr. Anderson, the representative of the Sanitary Works Company, has presented to the Government a petition in defence of the Company's claim to recover the taxes imposed upon house-owners for water and sewer service prior to 1st July 1891. He says that the questions turn upon Art. 14 of the contract for rescission of the Company's concession, which declares that the taxes payable for water and sewerage from the date of the delivery of the general bond, as mentioned in the contract, shall be collected by the Government, which shall pay all expenses from that date, and shall pay to the Company, instead of net profits, the sum of $6000 a month during the time that may elapse between the 1st of July 1891 and the delivery of the bond. The Company reserves to itself the right to receive the said water and sewer taxes until the delivery of the bond. The Sanitary Works Committee contends that the reservation merely enables the company to receive the taxes till the delivery of the bond and not to retain the same for its own benefit, but Mr. Anderson contends that it means that the dividing line is 1st July 1891, that all taxes due to that time belong to the Company and all taxes falling due subsequently belong to the Government.

Mr. Anderson director of the London and River Plate Bank leaves for England on the 3rd of August. He will be banqueted before he leaves.

The Crown Perfumery's Glycerine Soap, selling at Twyford and Co. at 12 cents the tablet, is moving very quickly, only four gross left out of the six, offered a few days since.

All who buy this soap will want no other, because it is both cheap and good.

LONDON NOTES

MONDAY, JUNE 13.

A manifesto, in view of the general election, has been issued by the London Nonconformist Council setting forth a series of objects to be attained by the friends of temperance, morality and enlightenment. Extension of the powers of the London County Council occupies a prominent place in the programme. A meeting of the Nonconformist Council will be held at the Memorial Hall this afternoon.

The Duke of Devonshire visited Cambridge on Saturday for the first time as Chancellor of the University, and was most warmly received. During the afternoon the ceremony of conferring honorary degrees was performed, the Duke of Edinburgh, Lord Northbrook, Sir Henry James, Mr. John Morley, and Mr. Joseph Chamberlain being amongst the recipients.

On Saturday there was a great gathering at the Crystal Palace, on the occasion of the presentation of the prizes and certificates given by the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals for essays by metropolitan school-children and pupil-teachers on the duty of kindness to animals. The total number of essays sent in for adjudication was 69,183, of which 202 were by teachers. The Duchess of Buckingham and Chaudos gave away the prizes, and Lady Aberdare the certificates; the recipients being 1,767 in all. The annual meeting of the society was afterwards held, presided over by Lord Aberdare.

The Duchess of Portland visited Shadwell on Saturday to open the new wing of the East London Hospital for Children.

A memorial which has been erected at Burley-in-Wharfedale to the late Mr. W. E. Foster by his fellow villagers was unveiled by Mr. Mundella, M.P., on Saturday evening.

"La Luce dell'Asia," the new opera founded on Sir Edwin Arnold's poem, "The Light of Asia," was most favourably received on being presented at Covent Garden on Saturday evening, with an Italian libretto by Signor Mazzucato.

A trial trip with a new electric launch, the Omicron, intended for picnic purposes on the Thames during the season, was made on Saturday.

Wilton Welter Handicap to Mr. R. Gladstone's Porridge.
John Gardner, who is charged with having committed indecent assaults upon various girls during his conduct of a music-hall agency business in Stamford-street, was again brought up at Bow-street on Saturday. Evidence, attributing to him behaviour of the grossest character towards girls who came to learn stage business, was given, and the case was again remanded.

CERTIFIED SPECIALISTS
351—SARANDI—351
The new system and great secret of placing crown and bridges of gold and porcelain, and beautiful artificial teeth without plates, practised in full perfection and security, for the first time in this capital, by the specialist surgeon-dentist W. E. Hill, Sarandi 351, is a true and notable advance in dental science. Witness the following certificate of the eminent North American specialist, Dr. Horsey.—
CERTIFICATE. Dr. Horsey, Surgeon-Dentist of New-York, Specialist in crown and bridge work.
I certify and declare that Dr. W. E. Hill, surgeon-dentist, is entirely competent to practice with all safety dental crown and bridge work. I also certify that Dr. Hill has performed in my presence a number of these works of the most difficult description, completely and perfectly, proving to me that he is the only person in Montevideo who possesses the true secret of this novel, useful and notable process, the only one who has the apparatus, the experience, knowledge and skill indispensable to be able to employ with success the most modern positive and beautiful process as yet known in dentalscience. 192 pm.

Stephen's Inks--Important Notice

Falsifications of Stephen's well-known Blue Black Writing and Copying Fluids are now being sold in this town as the genuine inks. The original bottles which have contained Stephen's Inks are being refilled with the imitation, and the trade mark, labels and seal are very closely copied.
The principal difference between the true and the forged label, is that the lines and ornamentation in the red ground work of the imitation are blurred and indistinct, instead of being sharp and clear as on Stephen's genuine labels.
It is to be noted that the litre and half-litre bottles of Stephen's genuine inks, have a patent cork attached consisting of a metal rim with teeth into which a cork is fastened--the fraudulent bottles have no such cork. The fraudulent ink writes of a greenish blue colour and thickens in the inkstand very rapidly, whereas Stephen's genuine ink writes a strong blue colour and keeps perfectly fluid in the inkstand. Assist in the prevention of this fraud by destroying the bottles which have originally contained Stephen's genuine inks.
Stringent legal proceedings will at once be taken against all dealers selling the fraudulent inks.

(A SHORT STORY.)

(Conclusion.)

Directly Olivia heard his voice she left the piano and giving him the big arm-chair near the open window, stood beside it, looking down expectantly into his keen blue eyes. «What is it, guardian?» «Only a request, dear. Will you give me your assurance that you will consider that which I have to say impartially; that you will not let yourself be influenced by what you think to be my wish in the matter?» «Yes; but I should like to please you always, guardian.» «My child, I have a proposal of marriage to give you; it is here, written in this letter. Don't start, don't look troubled, dear. You shrink from the importance of the question you have to answer? Ah, it is natural that you should do so; but you must let your heart decide. I know that the love which is offered you is true; you need not fear that it will not stand the test of time, and if you can say 'yes,' I shall be glad. There; no need for any more explanations. Olivia, my darling, your father confided you to me, and all I desire is your own happiness; if you believe you will find joy in repaying this love with your own affection, I shall rejoice; but if not, don't think of any pain you may give, but speak the truth unreservedly.»

The Major laid the letter in her hand and rose from the arm-chair. His voice trembled slightly as he drew her towards him and kissed her forehead, adding: «God help you to decide, my dear.» Olivia did not answer, and he left her hastily, going straight into the drawing-room to tell his sister all that had occurred. Millicent was delighted; so pleased, indeed, was she at the diplomacy he had displayed, that she suffered him to go back to his greenhouse and the cineraria plants without a single remonstrance. Olivia blushed, laughed, cried, and laughed again, over the letter. «How badly guardian has written! she thought, as she kissed the writing. «Ah, the old darling, to think that he should care for me! Me, a silly, ignorant bit of a girl!» Paul Melcombe had made a fatal mistake over that note; he had only signed his Christian name.

«DEAREST OLIVIA, — «I hope you may let me call you dearest all my life, because I love you as earnestly and truly as any man could. I have tried to tell you all about it, but I have torn up the other letters, feeling that they were altogether inadequate and unworthy of the subject. If you care for me enough to promise to be my wife some day, send me one little word in reply. Then I will come and say all that I must leave unwritten. Answer as you may, I shall always be your loving «PAUL.» «If you can say yes, I shall be glad,» Major Duke said when giving Olivia that letter.

«I can say yes with all my heart,» she wrote in reply, «as I could say to no one in the world but you. Dear Guardian—dear Paul, I must call you now—I love you.»

The Major was sorrowfully potting his cineraria cuttings when her hastily scribbled note was brought to him. The little green frog was perched beside him, and he had been caressing it, feeling that even its affection was solacing to a «man whom no one would ever love.» Romance was over for him, he was thinking; yet he would have appreciated home happiness more than many men.

And then he read Olivia's words to him, and—well, there was no shame in the action—he buried his lined face between his hands, while something strangely like a sob of joy rose in his throat. It was all so sudden; he was not prepared for such a reversal of all his feelings. Later on he puzzled over the note, and guessed at the mistake which had been made, but he could no longer regret it. He realised now how young Paul Melcombe really was; how unlikely to be permanently saddened by a first love disappointment; while he himself, he would never have forgotten dark-haired, bright-eyed Olivia. And she loved him! She loved him!

Millicent was surprised, but not displeased, when her brother told her all. She was glad for his sake, and assured him that he had in no way neglected his trust; her words had been hasty and ill-considered when accused him of having taken no interest in his ward's affairs. She did not resent the idea of giving over Rose Villa and its contents to Olivia; for, as she truly said, «the dear girl was so different to a stranger.» Young Paul, the Major's boyish mischievousness, was greatly distressed at first, but he could not complain when he remembered how the elder man had been willing to sacrifice his own happiness for Olivia's sake.

And Olivia herself? She never learned that she had answered the wrong man. The Major did not think it his duty to tell her, and Paul Melcombe was not likely to reveal the secret.

«How could you doubt whether I loved you?» pretty Olivia asked Paul Duke one day; «you are the kindest, noblest man on earth.»

«Not that, my dear,» he answered laughingly; then added in graver tones: «Your father said to me when he was dying, 'Care for my girl as though she were your own.' I sometimes fear that I was wrong to fall in love with you, when he confided you to my care as to that of a father.»

Olivia reached her little hand to the Major's brow, and tried to stroke out the line of doubt which creased it.

«Father would be glad if he were here, dear,» she answered in a low voice; «and he would tell you to care for me as your own. I am that, Paul, — yours with all my heart, for ever and ever!»

He smiled again as he kissed her, saying: «My wife shall always find me a loving guardian.»
