MINOR CAUSES OF DEPRESSION.

Whilst it is absolutely undeniable that the signal and prepotent cause of the present intense depression is the ignominious failure of the financial policy of the Government, combined with the enforced recognition of the fact that it refuses to initiate any reform in that policy or to take any serious or disinterested step towards improving the situation, there are also several causes of a minor or secondary character, which contribute to the trials of the situation, and which, although comparatively insignificant taken singly, form no unimportant total when massed together, as in effect they are. It may be worth while to glance at some of these minor causes.

That wretched institution the National Bank naturally suggests itself first. When this Bank collapsed for the second time in July 1891, it "stuck" the public for a considerable quantity of its notes.—We have not a balance before us to refer to, but so far as our memory serves, it was not far short of a million dollars. These notes still lie on the public hands, and although the smash happened over twelve months ago, there has not been the slightest hint of their redemption, though they are by law a preferential credit, ranking before all other claims. When the English Bank closed its doors, special mention was made in the Law of Liquidation of an early redemption of its notes in circulation. For reasons best known to Government this was not done in the Law of Liquidation of the National Bank; still, the ordinary commercial code holds good for the protection of note holders. Seeing that Government still burdens commerce by the collection of the 5% additional import duty imposed since December 1890, and specially destined to guarantee the conversion of the notes, and also remembering the mighty array of supposititious assets presented in the balance sheets of this Bank, it is certainly time that some effort was made to redeem them, or at all events that some announcement on the subject was made by the Liquidators. At present the notes only represent a loss to the public of nearly a million dollars.

Still sticking to the National Bank, we must next recall the judicial deposits, of which we cannot recollect the exact sum, but know that it is something considerable, perhaps between one and two millions. These deposits, consisting of inheritances, disputed claims, and sums which have been the subject of legal process or judicial orders, were forcibly deposited in the Bank in obedience to the Law which refused to acknowledge any other bank for this purpose, whatever the wishes of the depositors. Of the many scandals connected with this shameful Bank, there is perhaps none greater than that it should have been unable to refund these deposits, which were left with it, not for ordinary banking purposes, but in trust and suppositiously for safe care and custody. In this matter the Bank simply appears as a fraudulent trustee, and would be treated as such in any nation of ordinary commercial morality. Certainly, it must be acknowledged that the Executive has shown some anxiety in this head, and has tried to include the payment of these deposits in its negotiations for a new bank, but as those negotiations were not serious or disinterested they have come to naught. These judicial deposits rank, equally with the notes, as a preferential claim on the assets of the Bank, but there is no more promise of payment of the one than of the other, and they both represent so much money kept out of use and circulation. This is especially hard on the depositors, who in many cases were forced by an iniquitous law to place their deposits in the National Bank against their proper will and judgement, and with a painful foreboding of what would and did occur.

A third cause is undoubtedly the liquidation of the English Bank. When the first moratorium was applied for, we were solemnly assured that this Bank was in a position superior to that of the Branch in Buenos Aires, able to pay two dollars for one, and that a year would suffice to satisfy the creditors in full. The year has elapsed, but the creditors have not been offered a single dividend. The Bank, by its latest showing, owes some $1,300,000 cash in this market. Not a little of this corresponds to small creditors, probably hard pressed for money to carry on their business. At all events the payment in full of these and in part of the larger creditors, would set free a considerable quantity of money which would be exceedingly acceptable in the present situation. Unfortunately the Bank shows little signs of doing this, but has applied for a renewed moratorium, the granting of which will press very hardly on the creditors, either keeping them out of their money or else forcing them to sell their claims at a serious discount, corresponding to the low quotation of certificates in the market, brought about solely by the dissatisfaction felt with the procedure of the liquidators.

The gradual liquidation of several other financial and speculative concerns is also responsible for the lock-up of a considerable sum of money which may eventually return to use and circulation, but there are no affairs that reach the importance of the three named above. These three together are responsible for probably over $4,000,000 and when we remember that the President in his recent Message calculated the present circulation at only between 4 and 5 million dollars, the serious effect of this can easily be imagined. The settlement of these three matters alone—whilst facilitating the settlement of many minor affairs which we may describe as paralysed through sympathy—would therefore double the circulation, setting free some 4 millions to stimulate trade and industry. This would be better than any new Bank, because the money would be simply returning to its rightful owners, and would not have to be paid back with interest as in the case of advances from a Bank.

The best policy of the Executive, then, in the present situation, would be to make every effort to hasten the payment of these three matters, namely, the National Bank notes, the judicial deposits and the English Bank creditors. Let us hear no more of immoral moratoria, for they prove a cure hardly less bad than the disease. With that upside-down notion of things prevailing in the River Plate, all the consideration hitherto seems to have been for the debtors, and the creditors have been left to shift as best they could. That policy has not given good results, and it is time to try the reverse. Let a little more consideration be shown for creditors and a little more pressure put upon the debtors, so that the good are sifted from the bad. Let the liquidation of the National and English Banks be hastened, so that one formidable cause of depression is removed, and then the market may right itself. One thing is certain, the crisis will never be cured by moratoria and by an exaggerated leniency towards debtors which is only unjust to creditors. The market is in a state of disease which cannot be cured without suffering—but it is not the creditors who should be made to suffer. What matter if a few colonels or deputies are declared bankrupt and their goods sold up—far better that than that honest and hard-working creditors should be kept out of their own. The watchword now should be "pay up or break," let us liquidate at all costs and give the market a chance to start afresh. It is time the creditors were considered.

NEWS OF THE DAY

MONTEVIDEO
SATURDAY, AUGUST 6, 1892.

Transpiration, Saint Saviour. Lord Tennyson born 1839. Duke of Edinburgh born 1844. 219 days past, 147 to the end of the year.

Parliament.
In the Chamber of Representatives, on Thursday, although there was a quorum, the sitting only lasted a few minutes for the transaction of some routine business. The report of the Finance Committee on the Bill of Property Tax was distributed. Nothing further was done.

Passengers.
Left by R.M.S. "Magdalena" for Southampton, etc., August 5.—Messrs. N. Cranston, C. H. Jeffries, Staff-Capt. and Mrs. Ewens, S.A., J.T. Matti and family, E. Belangero, A. F. Garcia. 24 third class.

The R.M.S. "Trent" is expected on Tuesday next. She brings London dates to July 14 and supplementary mails to July 20.

Sols Theatre.
The annual visit of Sr. Ferrari's Opera Company is always looked forward to as one of the principal events of the winter season, and was especially so this year, in remembrance of the exceptionally good company he brought us last year, and of the fact that our most popular theatre has been given up for several weeks to the vulgarities and brutalities of "Juan Moreira" and the "criollo drama," and that the whole season has hitherto been dull and barren. Consequently the Sols Theatre was well filled with a fashionable and representative audience to witness the debut of the Company in the only two familiar "Huguenots" of Meyerbeer. It may be almost profanity to say so, but we do not share the enthusiasm of River Plate audiences for this opera, for while it contains much that is undeniably grand and beautiful, there are also many passages that are tedious and long drawn out, which might well be eliminated in conformity to modern tastes and to bring the performance into shorter limits. For instance, the two ridiculous ballets, which have no relation at all to the action, and were only introduced in conformity to operative taste early in the century (Huguenots was first produced in 1836) might easily be spared, as also some of the choruses and much of the recitative. Even allowing for the extraordinary reserve and coldness of the audience, which hardly applauded at all, it cannot be said that the Company made as favourable an impression as that of last year, though perhaps it is hardly fair to judge from a first performance. Great anxiety was felt to hear again the very promising tenor Sr. Mariacher, who made such a hit last year, and who reappeared as Raoul, but his fine voice showed signs of hard work, and he seems to be developing a tremolo which is fatal to its former clarion quality. In fact it was not until the finale of the fourth act that he did himself justice, but then he gave some glorious notes which momentarily roused the audience to enthusiasm. Sr. Scotti the baritone, as the Comte de Nevers, confirmed the good impression of last year, though his pure, severe style of singing hardly seemed to meet the appreciation it deserved. For all that we consider him one of the best baritones we have heard of recent years. The new bass Sr. Ercolani was hardly a success as Marcel, and he carries the tremolo to an excess verging on the ridiculous. The Queen was taken by Sta. Pettigiani, also familiar from last year's season, and who seems a favourite with the public here. She has a pleasant light soprano voice, and executes the florid music of the part with great agility and careful training, but her style is hard and her acting conventional in the extreme, all art and no nature. Sra. Gini-Pizzoni, also remembered favourably from a former season, was more successful as Valentine. There is nothing remarkable about her voice or her manner of singing, but her earnest style and great dramatic force render her a valuable artist and ensure her success in passionate scenes. The contralto Sta. Rappini, made an unusually handsome page, but her singing did not impress the audience in proportion to her physical attractions. The chorus was fair, the ballet indifferent, and the orchestra, conducted by Sr. Conti and including many musicians from Buenos Aires, was excellent. It is a pity that some steps are not taken to light the stage of this handsome theatre properly, and to provide it with some presentable scenery instead of the shabby and old-fashioned canvases exposed to view on Thursday, and which are quite unworthy the rest of the surroundings.

This evening "Gioconda" will be given with a change of artists.

British Guiana.
At a recent meeting of the Royal Geographical Society (Sir M. Grant Duff in the chair), a paper on "North-West British Guiana" was read by Mr. Everard Im Thurn. The lecturer spent nine years in a little known district of the South American continent, and during that time made a careful survey of about 9,400 square miles of territory, which is being so rapidly developed that it promises to become one of the busiest and most productive parts of the continent. A picturesque description was given of the physical aspects of the country and the appearance and customs of the aboriginal inhabitants. It was little more than a dismal swamp at first, but Government stations have now been placed at various points. A series of photographs thrown upon the screen showed the difficult character of the country through which the traveller passed, covered as it was with magnificent and almost impenetrable tropical vegetation, and including several types of the native Redmen whom Von Humboldt described (wrongly by the way) as living in the palm trees. Some of the faces of these people were highly intelligent in appearance.

The Centenary Celebration.
At a meeting of the Committee held on Thursday evening, Dr. Juan C. Blanco was elected President in place of Dr. J. P. Ramirez resigned. Sr. Granada stated that after much trouble he had extracted a promise from the Ministry of Finance that the subvention of $20,000 voted by the Chambers should be paid in weekly instalments of $2,000. It being judged that this sum was not sufficient to carry out the programme, it was resolved to make a house to house collection, accepting 10 cents as a minimum subscription. For this purpose the Chief of Police had promised to supply a list of residents. It was recorded that the only disbursements yet authorised were $5,000 towards the monument to Columbus, $10,000 for the representation of Sr. Granada's work, and some minor sums. S. Bachini, as delegate of the E. P. indignantly denied that any part of the funds voted by the Chambers had been paid as subvention to an Opera Company. The press would be asked to assist in raising the popular subscription. Several minor details were arranged.

Caridad Lottery.
The following are the principal winning numbers in yesterday's drawing—9021, $20,000.
3824, $1,000.
1247, 4684, $500 each.
10,805, 10,451, 2111, $100 each.
4619, 2729, 6744, 1904, 7058, 5085, 6395, $100 each.

SUNDRIES.

—The Representatives mustered up a quorum on Thursday, but they did not succeed in transacting any business.

—There is something mysterious about the payment of $120,000 more or less which Government is known to have made to the Logheda Opera Company. The official organ the Nacion said that the payment was perfectly innocent, being made out of the funds voted by Congress for the Centenary Celebration. Deputy Bachini, on behalf of the Executive, positively denies that any such payment has been made out of those funds, the disposal of which corresponds solely to the Centenary Committee. As there is no doubt about the payment having been made, the question now arises, whence did the money come. Perhaps the Nacion will volunteer another explanation. People want to know, you know.

—According to telegrams received by the Minister of Foment, no signs of the dreaded locust have been seen in Salto, Rocha, San José and Artigas. A cloud recently passed over Cerro Largo, but without causing damage.

—The ringleaders of the recent trouble in the School of Arts and Trades have been expelled, and several others dismissed, numbering some 33 in all.

—An Association football match will take place to-morrow between the Albion Club and the M.V.C.C. on the ground of the former at Punta Carretas, commencing at 2.30 p.m. sharp. The following are the Albion team.—Forwards, Woodcock, Decunex, (right), Lichtenberger (captain centre) Stewart, Starzenegger (left), half-backs, A. Davis, Clark, Morse; backs, Smith, Maclean; Goal, H. Lichtenberger. The names of the M.V.C.C. team have not reached us.

—We are asked to announce that the usual game of polo will take place to-morrow (Sunday) at 2.30 p.m. All players are requested to attend.

—Members of the Cricket Club are advised that the Annual Meeting will be held at Sarandí 126, on Tuesday, August 28, commencing at 8.15 p.m. A proposition will be made to alter the rules so as to permit of the subscription being collected monthly, instead of quarterly as hitherto.

—The London papers are chock full of electrifying news, which is not very interesting out here. But the general dullness is relieved by an occasional gleam of humour, as witness the following story.—A Tory candidate's daughter in the North has been prosecuting a vigorous canvass in the interests of her father. A poor woman in the town has a member of her family suffering from a recent accident. She went to the Tory candidate's house to beg a hospital ticket. Not being acquainted with the conventional methods of begging at great folk's houses, she went to the front door. After making her message known to the servant, she waited some considerable time. At length the girl returned, saying that Miss — would see her if she went round to the back door. There the young lady, while graciously giving her the ticket, told her she should never come to the front door to beg. A day or two afterwards this same young lady knocked at a door in a certain street, and with one of her most winning smiles solicited the vote and interest of the occupant for her father. The woman who came to the door was the same who had applied for the hospital ticket at the Tory candidate's front door. "Well, Miss," she said, "we never serve beggars at the front door, but if you go round to the back I'll ask my husband to see you."

—A movement is on foot to celebrate September 18, anniversary of the entry of Garibaldi's troops into Rome, by a civic procession of national and foreign liberals. This has already stirred the bile of the Catholic organ the Bien, which hates the name of Garibaldi.

—The new British Parliament opened on Thursday, Sir Arthur W. Peel was unanimously re-elected Speaker. The Queen's Speech will be read on Monday. The first debate will probably arise over the reply to the Speech.

—The "Lira" will hold its next family concert on Monday. We thank the Committee for their courteous invitation.

—It is telegraphed from Messina that the eruptions of Mount Etna have burst forth with renewed violence. Enormous masses of lava are being thrown up. The neighbourhood is in great panic.

BUENOS AIRES
—Dr. Alem says that he has not received any communication whatsoever respecting the supposed conspiracy, either from Salta or Tucuman. It has a very suspicious look of having been organized by the Salta authorities. A new Governor will have to be elected shortly, and we all know that a "state of siege" promotes tranquillity at such periods.

—Mr. J. A. Lopont, inspecting officer of Police, has been suspended and the Chief of Police proposes that he should be dismissed, on account of serious charges made against him.

—General Benavidez and Colonel Belisle fought a duel on Wednesday, on account of letters which have recently been published respecting one of them. They were both slightly wounded.

—The Intendant has proposed to the Council to pass a by-law prohibiting the entrance of hinds under 18 into the Sport houses and their access to the Sport offices at the Hippodromes. Any contravention of this law will be punished by a fine of $200 for the first offence and $500 for any succeeding ones. It is proposed that the owners of the betting establishments and the Hippodrome Committees shall be respectively held responsible for the carrying out of this order and for the payment of all fines imposed under the new law.

—The Federal Judge, Dr. Lalanne, upon the application of the Belgian Minister in this capital and by virtue of the treaty with Belgium, has granted the extradition of Eugenio Antonio Camerman, accused of fraudulent bankruptcy and forgery.

—Mr. Charles S. Raud of New York, representing the American Bank Note Company, was for some time in this city, and formed a considerable circle of acquaintances by whom he was most highly esteemed; news reaches us that he died in New York on May 10th and was buried at his earlier home at Headnor, Penn.

—The marriage of Mr. John Cowen, of Altamirano, to Miss Kate A. Hussey, eldest daughter of the late Mr. Michael Hussey of Brandzen, was celebrated on Saturday evening at the Convent Church of the French sisters of Charity, calles Cochabamba and San José, in the presence of a large number of friends. The Rev. Father Grey officiated. The bride received a large number of valuable presents.

—The Government has asked leave from Congress to expend $100,000 upon an improved plan for a wharf at Gualayuychí, instead of the $50,000 voted by Congress.

—Mr. Fishback, the Secretary of the U.S. Legation, and acting Chargé d'Affaires, has returned from Montevideo. He has been appointed commissioner in this Republic for the Chicago Exhibition.—B. A. Herald.

—Wednesday evening an entertainment was given to the members of the English Literary Society and their friends, at the "Salon La France." The little room was nearly full, the audience consisting principally of ladies. The first part of the programme was composed of a few musical items furnished by the members of the Musical and Dramatic Society's orchestra, assisted by Messrs. Barnes and Harry Scott. This was followed by a performance of Sullivan's operetta "Cox and Cox," arranged by Burnard from Madison Morton's farce "Box and Cox." The acting was very successful and called forth continuous laughter from the audience. The musical parts are by no means easy, and the performance was highly creditable to the Dramatic Society. Mr. F. M. Still accompanied at the piano with much skill and good taste, and Mr. Welby conducted the orchestra.

—The Anglican Clergy are now making arrangements to hold a choir festival in which all the choirs of various Anglican churches will take part. The festival will be held on All Saints' Day November 1.

—It is expected that the Executive power will be shortly questioned in the Chambers about the execution of the law creating the "Banco de la Nacion Argentina" especially concerning that part which refers to the power of making advances to the Government, which are limited to two millions of dollars and which sum it is said has been exceeded.—The Times.

LONDON NOTES

WEDNESDAY, JULY 6.
The elections decided yesterday were of a very even character, the returns received down to an early hour this morning showing that the Liberals on the one side, and the Conservatives on the other, had each won six seats. The Liberals won two in London—West Islington, where Mr. Lough defeated Mr. Richard Chamberlain, and North Lambeth, where Mr. H. M. Stanley was the Ministerial candidate. They also won two seats from Disunion-Liberals in the boroughs—North Bristol and Newcastle-under-Lyme, and two seats from Conservatives—Great Yarmouth and Whitehaven. The Conservatives won seats from Liberals at West St. Pancras, Barrow, Scarborough, Stockton, West Wolverhampton, and Perth. In the last named place there were two Liberal candidates. On the whole of the elections, so far, the Liberals have a net gain of nine seats.

A Correspondent sends particulars of Mr. Gladstone's further journey through the constituency of Mid-Lothian. Yesterday the right hon. gentleman took a long drive, and finally addressed a large meeting at Dalkeith. In regard to what was called Scotch Home Rule, or what he rather preferred to call Scottish Nationalism, he was not at all certain that Scotland yet knew definitively and deliberately her own mind as to the particulars of Home Rule; but at the same time he was certain that Scotland had yielded no jot or tittle of her just claims ever since there was an independent Parliament sitting in Edinburgh. In regard to Scotch disestablishment, he reiterated what he had always said, viz., that it was a matter that should never be carried by storm, but should only be dealt with after full, sufficient, and effectual consideration.

The London County Council yesterday resolved to purchase the Bethnal-green Poor's Land for 6,000l., and to take steps for the opening of Lincoln's-inn-fields Garden to the public. The Public Health and Housing Committee were authorised to communicate with the local authorities in those districts where mortuary accommodation is inadequate with a view to the shortcoming being rectified.

Some remarkably high prices were paid at Christie's yesterday for the Limoges enamels and ivory carvings in the Magnific collection. The afternoon's sale realised 18,343l. Mr. Bernberg's opera "Elaine" was performed in French for the first time at Covent Garden last night.

A balloon accident, in which two persons were killed and another sustained serious injuries, is reported from Boston, U. S. A. The balloon having drifted in the direction of the sea, the aeronaut attempted to open the valve. In doing so he rent the silk, and the balloon fell.

Henley Regatta was shorn of much of its picturesque on the opening day in consequence of the steady rain which fell. The first heats in the various events were however proceeded with.

Rain greatly interfered with the progress of the Gentlemen v Players match at Lord's yesterday cricket being impossible after half past three. In the morning the first innings of the Players was completed, the total being taken from 375 to 454. Afterwards the Gentlemen lost one wicket for 91 runs. At Hull, Yorkshire beat Staffordshire by an innings, with 281 runs to spare; and, at Manchester, Lancashire gained an easy victory over Cheshire. Cambridge University gave a very creditable display at Dublin.

Yesterday, in the Probate, Divorce, and Admiralty Division, the President (Sir Francis Jeune) had before him the petition of Mrs. C. H. Hawtry, wife of the actor of that name, for restitution of conjugal rights. The parties were married in 1886, and the respondent left his wife a year ago without assigning any reason. There was no defence, and a decree was made ordering the respondent to take his wife back within fourteen days.

At Bow-street Police-court yesterday, Sir Gilbert Campbell and the other men who are charged with him with conspiring to obtain money by means of bogus artistic societies, were further examined and again remanded.

Wenzel, the young German, who shot Detective-Sergeant Joyce, while that officer was attempting to arrest him, was yesterday again brought up at the Marlborough-street Police-court and remanded.

The deaths registered in London last week, 1,377, were 35 fewer than the average, and the death rate per thousand per annum fell to 16.3, the lowest rate for many weeks past. There were four deaths from small-pox, the average being six. Deaths from scarlet fever (21, 23 and 28 in the preceding three weeks) were 21 last week, or four in excess of the average.

It is not generally known, writes a correspondent, that in 1886, when Mr. Gladstone went out of office, he left behind him in the official residence of the Prime Minister in Downing-street a quantity of his goods and papers, such as old pamphlets, Government Bills, and papers of one who was to any one except the enthusiast who buys up anything that was once in the hands of a great man. Recently these articles have been overhauled, and not unfrequently Mr. Gladstone's private secretary, Mr. Lytton, has been down to ferret out a report or other document required by Mr. Gladstone. There is a clock of Mr. Gladstone's there which has never been allowed to run down, and which now keeps accurate time without having been cleaned in the six years that have passed. It is not improbable that this clock may yet be going when Mr. Gladstone once more steps over the threshold of No. 10, Downing-street.

An opinion sometimes heard that lawn tennis is losing its power of attraction with the public did not receive confirmation yesterday, when the enclosure at Wimbledon was filled with a brilliant crowd, who went down to witness the meeting of W. Baddeley and J. Pim in the championship round. By his decisive victory Baddeley clearly demonstrated that his success last year was not the accident which many deemed it. In spite of Pim's dashing play in the early part of the match he never appeared to hold a winning chance, for directly the Champion settled down he neutralized Pim's brilliancy by his wonderful power of covering almost any ball, and the accuracy of his returns was really remarkable. On his form of yesterday it is not too much to say that he would probably have been a match for the redoubtable William Renshaw at his best, and his display only serves to accentuate the regret that was felt when it was found that Ernest Renshaw's name was missing from the list of competitors, as their second meeting should have proved intensely interesting.

As the 14th of July draws nigh, French flag-makers are looking forward to larger sales than in preceding years. A Paris Correspondent writes: The latest novelty in this line is the Franco-Russian flag. It is divided horizontally into two parts, one-half being the French colours, and the other half the Russian. Need I say that the French half is uppermost? To a foreigner it would have appeared better taste, perhaps, to place the colours side by side as in the new Imperial Austro-Hungarian flag. On closer consideration it turns out to be a trait of national generosity. The French colours uppermost show that the French people have offered their alliance to the Czar, extending to him a sort of benevolent protection. France is to be the senior partner, of course. Russia cannot object to this without ingratitude. Apart from this, and in a more serious order of ideas, it is not rash to prophesy that this piecing together of the glorious tricolour of 1789 and the yellow flag of the Czar—which has as much to do with liberty as a convict's yellow cap—will be an object of wonder to future Frenchmen, and perhaps to future Russians. It will take its place in museums as a curious historical relic.

The cause of our old friend the sparrow is now given up by so high an authority as Miss Ormerod, the entomologist, who, in a letter to Earl Cathcart, has declared herself unequivocally on the side of the Sparrow Club. Among farmers there has never been much hesitation on this subject. As to the depredations of rooks they are pretty equally divided. Miss Ormerod is of opinion that in the case of the corvids much depends on weather, state of land, and crops, but as regards the much-debated question of the sparrow she declares that, whatever it may eat in town, it is in the country, to her personal knowledge, a cause of fearfulness. This is not only by its raids on the conifers, but by driving away the swallows and martins, which are amongst the first class of our insect protectors. "Should the matter" (says Miss Ormerod) "be brought forward, I have a large amount of evidence in my hands as to the absolute curse that this bird is (in its fostered condition) to British agriculture."

As our stock of coal is clearly progressing towards exhaustion, it is some comfort to learn, on the authority of the distinguished Russian chemist, Dr. Mendeleef, that there is good ground for believing that abundance of petroleum will always be available. Rock oil, we are reminded, belongs to no particular strata, though it is found generally in regions lying parallel to mountain ranges. In Europe, for example, it is tapped in rocks of the Tertiary period, and in the United States it rises out of Devonian and even Silurian formations. Dr. Mendeleef suggests that this valuable heat-giving substance is constantly being formed by the action of water on metallic deposits in the heated interior of the earth. The extraordinary average persistence of the oil wells supports, as is observed by the President of the Institution of Mechanical Engineers, the theory that it is forming almost as fast as it is removed. The President looks forward to improvements in boring appliances which will enable us to penetrate to depths undreamed of yet.

CRAB APPLE BLOSSOMS.

THE NEWSPAPER-MAN AS A CONFIDENT.

(Lippincott's Magazine.) That newspaper print all they know, is a popular belief held by nearly everyone. That newspapers print more than they know, is a vulgar belief held by that large and ignorant portion of every community which does not read newspapers to be informed, but to be interested, and, if possible, shocked. That newspapers print all that they hear, is a supposition entertained by the people who bring what they think is news to newspaper-offices. That newspapers print nothing that they hear from irresponsible sources, without investigation, is the truth, known to all trained newspaper-men. Force as competition is, there could to-day be started in every large city of the East a newspaper which would outstrip every other newspaper in the vital interest of its news by simply printing what the other newspapers refused to print. This news would all of it, too, be within legal and conventional bounds of decency. Then why not start such a newspaper? will be asked. Such newspapers have been started in plenty, but none were sustained. The reason, simple though seemingly paradoxical, is that the stock in trade of every solidly established newspaper is the news that does not print. In other words, confidence is the source of every piece of really valuable news; and to maintain that confidence and obtain that news the newspaper-man must daily sacrifice a vast amount of readily printable and vastly readable matter, the publication of which would cut him off from his sources of supply.

CHAPTER III.

The Palmello Grove.

The false lieutenant was now thoroughly domesticated at Henri de Santilly's abode, and for the success of his plot he kept a wary watch upon its inmates. He saw that Henri was a weak, impressionable young man; one who lived with an absolute incapacity for saying no to any request, however absurd, that might be made to him, and he very soon obtained a complete mastery over him. With Leonie, however, the matter was certainly different. Almost from the moment of her first meeting with him, the young girl had been inspired with a feeling of the strongest antipathy for the wail that the ocean had cast upon their shore, a feeling which she would have found it hard to explain, but which was nevertheless deeply impressed upon her heart. When his dark bold glance was directed towards her, she instinctively shuddered and trembled like the bird, at the first sight of the deadly reptile whose power of fascination it dreads. She turned a deaf ear to his most florid compliments, and when in the exercise of the common courtesies of every-day life, his fingers touched hers, she recoiled with a feeling of loathing which she had no power to repress.

M. de Brignolles, too, detested Hector de Chavannes intensely, and whenever they met there were generally a few angry words, which Henri was utterly unable to prevent, in spite of his utmost endeavours to do so.

Hector and Mde. Randon, by mutual arrangement, took but little notice of each other, but had concocted a plan by which they were enabled to hold communications secret with each other when it seemed desirable for them to do so.

On the evening of an excessively sultry day, Leonie found herself almost alone in the house. Mde. Randon alleging that she was suffering from a nervous indisposition, had shut herself up in her room, and Henri had accompanied De Chavannes to the neighbouring town, upon some errand of dissipation and revelry. Feeling the heat, indoors, insupportable, Leonie had strayed into the garden, and was wandering listlessly up and down, when a whistle, twice repeated, from behind a hedge of prickly pear arrested her attention. She started, and a feeling of intense pleasure ran through every nerve, as she recognised the signal by which Edouard Legarde had been in the habit of making his presence known to her.

Turning quickly in the direction from which the sound proceeded, she whispered softly "Edouard!" and in another moment the young man was by her side.

"Leonie!" he murmured, in tones of the most thrilling devotion, "can it be possible that we meet again after so many months of agonising separation?"

"O, Edouard, you cannot imagine how much I have suffered during your absence," answered the young girl, permitting her fingers still to remain in her lover's grasp.

"And do you not think that I too have suffered?" interrupted the young man, reproachfully.

"Every day has seemed like an age to me since I was unable to gain any news of your actions," continued the young girl. "But is it not rash to venture here? You know my brother's fiery disposition, and I half suspect that M. de Brignolles keeps a careful watch upon all your goings and comings."

"Have no fear for me, Leonie," answered the young man, gazing fondly upon her. "Do you not know that there are many slaves upon your brother's estate, who were once the property of my late father, and who are still strangely attached to me; through them, I am aware of every movement that takes place in your home, and so am able to evade any vigilance displayed by your brother," he added, with a slight tone of bitterness in his voice. "Your brother and M. de Chavannes are now in town, and M. de Brignolles has hidden over to join them. The spy, that has been placed to watch you, in the shape of the Englishwoman, is safe in her chamber, and we have a brief hour before us in which we can converse in safety. But we are in too exposed a position; let us retire behind yonder clump of palm-trees, so as to be screened from any prying eye, for I have much to say to you."

With the most perfect confidence, the young girl permitted Edouard Legarde to lead her to the spot he had indicated; and when he had placed her upon a rustic seat, he knelt before her, and taking both her hands in his, began—

"Leonie, my dearest, my mind misgives me sorely that some hidden mischief is hanging over our heads. I have a strange inexplicable feeling that this man Hector de Chavannes is in some way connected with it. Do not ask me for my reasons," he added hastily, as he saw that the young girl was about to speak, "for I can give you none. I have met him in the town leading your brother into habits of gambling and intoxication, and he gives me the idea of not being what he affects to be. You know that my poor father formerly held a commission in the navy, and that from my childhood I have been in the habit of meeting officers of that service. It seems to me that this man is not of the same stamp; he is vulgar, arrogant, and I cannot help thinking, with but slight knowledge of his profession, which seems strange in one who has risen to the rank that he affects to hold. "You cannot look upon him, Edouard," returned Leonie, "with greater dislike and distrust than I do; but, like you, I can give no reason for my antipathy save that I think that he is exercising an evil influence over my brother."

"You are perfectly right upon that point," returned the young man, "and the change in your brother has been remarked by all the society of the Island. But this is not all: I partly fear from his boasting whilst under the influence of wine, that he has designs upon yourself."

"Upon me?" exclaimed Leonie, starting from her seat in horror, "you cannot mean that, Edouard?"

"Not entirely upon yourself," answered Edouard with a faint smile, "but wholly upon your fortune!"

"But you do not think my brother would consent?" said the terrified girl. "Besides he has always advised me to accept M. de Brignolles' suit!"

"That was before he was so completely under this man's influence; besides the name of Chavannes is well known and highly respected in France, and the idea of your being a countess may have some weight with your brother."

"It shall never be!" exclaimed Leonie passionately, "I have given my whole heart to you, Edouard, and I will be no other man's wife!"
