Only 1,352 deaths were registered in London last week, or 180 fewer than the average for the week. The death-rate per 1,000 was 16.7. ment, of remarkable courage, and of a loyal disposition; but they showed the credulity of children and the simple directness of shepherds. So tall were they that the Spaniards speak of them as giants, and their strength and endurance were so great that they were conquered by stratagem but not by force. They ran as fast as horses, and could leap over a pole held between two men five or six feet high; they could climb the highest mountains and jump the deepest ravines. Their endurance as swimmers was so great that they were accustomed to swim across the nine miles strait between the Lanocroete and Graciosa; having no boats, their method of fishing was to strike the fish with sticks, or catch them in their hands; while swimming. Their skulls, which are preserved in the museums of the island, and of which I took photographs, show marked cerebral development, the frontal and parietal bones being well developed and the facial angle good. In the early days of the conquest, before rapine and murder had done their vile work, the Guanches are spoken of as being musical and fond of dancing and singing. These arts, together with those of basket-weaving and pottery-making, were a few relics of a great and remote civilisation, and were preserved in the same way, while swimming. Their skulls, which are preserved in the museums of the island, and of which I took photographs, show marked cerebral development, the frontal and parietal bones being well developed and the facial angle good.
