THE CHICAGO «WORLD'S FAIR»

«The Royal Commission of the Chicago Exhibition of 1893, which holds its sittings in the historic rooms of the Society of Arts in the Adelphi, are at length in a position to furnish prospectuses giving detailed information for English exhibitors, which together with forms of application for space, will within a few days be sent out on a large scale.

industry—more particularly when it is coupled with the regulation that any one purchasing foreign articles at the close of the Exhibition shall, before he removes them, pay the Customs dues to be Treasury agents.

The Government have, it appears, reserved for the officers of the Royal Commission one of the most prominent and best sites in the vast grounds. It is on the shore of Lake Michigan, closely adjacent to the United States Government exhibits, and it is suggested that a characteristic and handsome building should be there erected.

The original notion was to classify all exhibits by subjects without regard to nationalities—a convenient method no doubt from more than one point of view, but unfortunately an impracticable one.

Busy brains and fingers of women in all countries are invited to contribute to this particular display, without, however, excluding the productions of women from the general exhibition and work which is to be submitted to the jury.

Our Miserable Mission.

(A SHORT STORY.) (Continued) Presently Mrs. Durant returned to the charge. 'Now, Arthur, perhaps you will tell me what all this means?' 'Perhaps I won't.' 'Cool, uncool even, I had said. Yes! Durant was playing his part very well.

'No one ever spoke to me like that before.' 'You have no right to.' 'I am your husband; and I must remind you that a husband has certain rights, which rights I intend to stick to.'

'Well, and if I did speak to you in my way before Stanley, what of that? You've picked me out more often enough before your confounded Wright woman to think nothing of that.'

'You are a man, and that's quite a different thing.' 'And you are a woman with rights which, if persisted in, would infallibly turn you into a very indifferent sort of man.'

'It is unmanly of you to treat me like this,' she pouted. 'Good! I am unmanly, and you and your set are trying all you know to be unmanly. We meet on equal ground then.'

'Oh, you will drive me wild!' and she sprang to her feet, and walked up and down impatiently. 'Good gracious! Why did I marry you?' 'I shall repent it to the last day of my life.'

her eyes flashing, her attitude expressing unbounded defiance. 'I'll make you!' 'Never.' 'For one stormy moment they stood facing each other; then by a sudden gesture Mrs. Durant threw the magazine on the floor, and ran out of the room, leaving her husband to carry out his threat at his leisure.'
