POLITICAL NOTES.

The Representatives were convoked for Saturday, but once again no quorumed. It is not surprising that our native contemporaries should again be crying out about the gross inattention of this Chamber to its duties, never more scandalously displayed than in the present year. We are afraid, however, that they waste their energy. Legislators who owe their seats to anything except the public vote, are as little likely to be affected by public opinion in this respect as they have already shown themselves impervious to it in many others. They draw their salaries all the same, and they earn them, in their own opinion, by voting when required in the interests of their lord and nominee; that being done they are satisfied and public opinion and public interests may alike go to the—!

The question of constitutional reform still occupies discussion, and Sunday's Bien has a very sound article on the matter, in which is says very plainly that, putting aside all other disputed points, the mere fact of the intense impurity of the present Chambers, who, by their fraudulent mode of election hold no mandate or representative power from the people, should effectually prohibit them from meddling with the Constitution. This is plain-speaking, but the gravity of the question demands it, and there is no doubt that the Bien touches the sore. We expect its article will be peculiarly unpleasant to the «herreristas,» to whom fraudulent elections are rather a good joke than otherwise, and who continually manifest the delusion that the predominance they have gained by fraud gives them title to unlimited control and disposal of the country and all concerning it.

The Razon occupies itself with a different phase of the electoral question, and in a rather abstruse article shows that, even were the elections honest, under the present system of counting votes they would still give an unfair result for they give no representation whatever to the minority. It might go further and say that the system has been cunningly arranged so as not only to give the majority a predominance that is absolute, but also one that is perpetual, for it affords no room for expression of a change of opinion on the part of the country (so far as the voters represent the country.) Thus it is that a party or circle once attaining power is able to perpetuate itself there, and we see no healthy alternation of government as between liberals and conservatives in England or between republicans and democrats in the United States, That this assurance of continued power of one party, practically resolving itself into an oligarchy, leads to disastrous results, is shown by the history of the last twenty years in this republic, whilst it has been under the domination of the «colorados,» who abused their power both to eliminate their political opponents and to misgovern the Republic in the teeth of public opinion. They completed their work under Herrera by making popular suffrage and party representation an absolute myth. All of which shows that, to restore the political equilibrium and organisation of the Republic, there requires to be done a great deal more than the derogation of the disgraceful electoral law of 1893, though even that has not yet been attempted.

Though nothing of the moment has occurred or seems to be occurring in government circles, the political atmosphere is once more lively with rumours, conjectures, discussions, and also intrigues. Though the nine days's wonder has passed, report is as rife as ever as to imminent resignations and appointments of deep political significance. What keeps these reports alive, beyond public hopes, is difficult to ascertain. The President is reported as «impenetrable,» but nevertheless certain significant phrases are attributed to him and his. For instance, respecting the creation of the new department of Solis, for which the «herreristas» are intriguing so actively and interestedly, the President is reported as having said that he would not support the idea, because he was not prepared openly to break with public opinion. Apropos of this it is added that all the Ministers except Dr. Miguel Herrera are also said to be strongly opposed to the idea. Again, it is said that the nucleus of the party Sr. Borda is gradually forming round him, speak openly of the necessity of breaking with «herrerism» as a sine qua non for a restoration of confidence. These things, and others we have not space to repeat, may not be true, but they are well invented, and we both think and hope that they show the way the wind is blowing.

Of actual movement in the Government House there is nothing worth reporting. The Minister of Finance is expected back to-day, and it is to be hoped his presence will import more activity to Government life in general.

Roadmaking.

Messrs. Carlos Rowley, Solsona and Co. have presented to Government a proposition for making 500 kilometres (say 364 miles) of macadamised cartroads in the Department of Montevideo and adjoining parts of the Republic. The roadway to be 7 metres wide, with a footpath of 1 1/2 metres at each side. They offer to begin work six months after the Law is promulgated, completing 10 kilometres in the first year, 30 in the second, 52 in the third and fourth, 56 in the fifth, and 60 in the five remaining years, thus completing the 500 kilometres in 10 years. They offer a guarantee of $200,000 (in Public Debt bonds) which shall remain in deposit during the 20 years of the contract, during which period they also undertake to keep the roads in good order.

In recompense for all this they ask for the entire proceeds of a tax to be imposed on all tobacco sold in the republic, at the rate of 1 cent for each 10 cents of their value on leaf cigars, and 1/2 a cent each for those worth less than 10 cents, to be collected by means of stamps fixed on the head of the cigar, (more stamps!) 1 cent on every 10 cigarrettes sold in a packet and 1/2 cent on each 10 grammes of tobacco sold loose or in packets. Infractions to be punished with fines of from $100 to $2000! The tax to last for the twenty years of the contract.

Although roads are badly wanted, the proposal does not seem a very sympathetic one. Tobacco is already heavily taxed, and the substantial increase proposed would certainly meet resistance from both merchants and consumers. Moreover, the tax not being ad valorem would press very heavily on native tobacco, amounting in some instances to 50 and more per cent. The cost of the roads would be about $7,000,000, though the proponents state it at $10,000,000, whilst it is difficult to say how much the proposed tax for twenty years would come to, but probably considerably more. Moreover it is evident that the proponents simply mean to build the roads out of the receipts from the tax as it comes in, requiring little further capital than that necessary to purchase the Bonds of Public Debt for deposit. If roads are simply to be built out of the proceeds of a tax, we should say the government could undertake the task itself without the assistance of intermediaries. Altogether, the scheme, though sufficiently important to deserve consideration, does not look well at the outset.

War News.

We give below the substance of telegrams appearing since our last.

The British and Russian Governments have addressed a communication to the Chinese Minister in reply to the request for intervention in the war. Both Governments decline to intervene in the matter, having decided to maintain the strictest neutrality. They however recommend China to make direct advances to the Mikado who, according to confidential despatches received, would entertain a proposal for the cessation of hostilities, as Japan is also desirous to put an end to the war on equitable conditions. The fact that both replies are couched in the same terms makes it evident that England and Russia are agreed on the course to pursue.

Yesterday's telegrams state that the Japs have taken the fortified points of La-hien-huan and Kingchou, to the east and west respectively of Port Arthur, thus cutting it off by land, as well as two more advanced forts, and are preparing for a simultaneous bombardment by land and sea. The fall of the Port is considered certain. The Japs demand an unconditional surrender. The insurrection in Corea is reported as suffocated. The Emperor of China is said to be seriously ill and in a fever with disgust and anxiety. The reports from Chinese sources of a Japanese defeat in front of Port Arthur are not credited, being merely an effort to allay the panic in the Chinese army. A Tokio telegram states that the Japanese Government has expressed itself as willing to listen to proposals of peace from China. Fulminating cholera has appeared in Pekin. President Cleveland has officially informed the Japanese Government that he willing to act as arbiter, if requested by both parties.

SUNDRIES.

—Those fortunate—or unfortunate—enough to possess landed property are reminded that the tax revisers commence their task on Thursday next, so those who have not paid their contribucion may look out for fines.

—The telegrams of yesterday afternoon show no advance in the political crisis in Buenos Aires. President Senez Peña was quite unable to form a Cabinet, and the probability of his resignation seemed to be much spoken of.

—The Orejon Zarzuela Company at the Politeama is doing capital business, and deserves it, for it contains some very acceptable artists. Sr. Orejon is an amusing comedian, the Sra. Garcia sings admirably, and Sta. Aceves is a pleasing actress. «El Rey que Rabió» was well given and proved a great success for the Company. We must, however, again complain of the late hours to which the performance is protracted. This evening there will be the usual variety of pieces, in «sections.»

—Sunday's races at Maroñas were better attended than of late, and proved very interesting. The Gran Premio Montevideo of 3000 metres was a most exciting and well contested race, won out of a field of 14 by Cartouche (by Kimbolton out of Warrego) of Sr. Paullier's Cabaña Santa Ecilda. Elio second and La Fortuna third. Sport paid $19.98. The winners of the other events were, Fauvette; $20.01; Ecarte, $6 35; The Masher, $4.40; and Olimpico, $5.60. The favorites were rather out of it.

—A correspondent of the Review of the R.P., referring to the Lewis murder case, says it was an open secret that the verdict «was arranged by the composition of the jury being assured from personal friends of the murderer.» Certainly it is difficult to account for so monstrous a verdict on other grounds. We do not think, however, that such a scandal will be repeated when the case comes before the Superior Tribunal—and, indeed, it will be the duty of those interested in seeing justice done, to see that it is not repeated, and that the case is presented to the Court in a form that shall prevent any further miscarriage of justice.

—The B. A. Standard regrets to announce the murder of its countryman Mr. Laurence Dogherty, in Mercedes, on his mother's estancia. He was attacked by five men and stabbed to death. He was found in a dying condition in the camp and conveyed to the estancia, where he expired at 2 p.m. on Friday. The Comisario has arrested the five men implicated in the crime. Mr. Dogherty was a youth of only 19 years of age, and related to many leading Irish families in the West.

—Messrs. Elder, Dempster, and Co., Liverpool, received from Captain James A. Murray, of their steamer Gambia, an account of a battle between a sword-fish, thresher, and a whale off the West African coast. The letter is dated from Cameroons, 1st September. and says that when the steamer was off Fernando Po, breakers were reported on the vessel's starboard bow. On Capt. Murray going on the bridge, he found the «rock» to be a large whale, which was engaged in a furious encounter with a sword-fish and thresher. The thresher was seen to throw itself high into the air and come down with great force on the exposed back of the whale. The latter, from the repeated jerks which it made, was also seen to be attacked with great force from below by the sword-fish. Suddenly an extra lurch was given by the whale, and over it turned on its back. Then it was seen that the sword-fish had been making a fearful onslaught below the water. The sword had struck deeply, and the sword-fish appeared like the mast of a vessel with the body of the whale as the hull. The swordfish made desperate efforts to release itself, but its exertions were unavailing. At last, however, the whale gave several side jerks, endeavouring, it could be seen, to break the sword of its foe. This it at last succeeded in doing, and threw the sword-fish into the sea, minus its dangerous snout. The battle was now over, and all of the combatants disappeared beneath the surface of the water. Most of the ship's crew saw the fight from the steamer's deck, and so close were all of the fish that every movement they made during the greater part of the contest could be seen.

—Will any enterprising reader kindly inform us what really is the colour of the one cent postage stamp at present in use in this Republic? We have been looking at various stamp catalogues and we find it described respectively as blue, dull blue, sky blue (we suppose this was London sky,) grey, violet, indigo, greenish blue, etc., etc., etc. And yet the stamp is only one colour, not a dozen.

—General Garmendia accepted the vacant Portfolio of War in Buenos Aires, but his acceptation was instantly followed by an avalanche of resignations from leading military officials, which so frightened President Saenz Peña that he asked his new Minister to resign, which he did after having held the portfolio much less than two hours. This is probably the shortest ministration on record, and would form a good incident for a burlesque—like many other things in River Plate politics.

—We have omitted to mention that the transit of Mercury on Saturday afternoon was not a success, owing to the clouds. The same thing occurred in Buenos Aires. Those anxious to see this interesting performance must now wait until the next century is well advanced.

—Our facetious contemporary the B. A. Standard pokes some mild fun at a recent printer's error in our paper, and in doing so commits an equal error itself. This is a dangerous practice, as we know from experience, for misprints are peculiarly catching. Let the B.A.S. take warning by an English contemporary which recently spoke of «the battle-scarred veteran General G.» and the next day corrected its blunder by saying.—«We have to apologise to General G. for a misprint in connection with his name yesterday, our intention was to have described him as bottle-scarred.»

—Last Friday Copenhagen was officially opened as a free port and the event was celebrated by the merchants with great festivities.

—The latest novelty in Buenos Aires is a «jumping bean.» This is described as the product of a Mexican plant allied to the milk weed family. The seed owes its jumping habit not to any quality of its own, but to the larva of a small moth which inhabits it. The uneasy movements of the larva cause the seed to roll about a flat surface, and even to jump a slight distance in the air. We cannot say how long the «jumping bean» has been jumping. (This joke is copyright.)

—We have just received the current number of the Arrow, which, as usual, comes full of interesting reading. Foremost amongst the contents is a very sensible and thoughtful paper by the Editor on the «Education of Children in Argentina,» much of which would be equally applicable here.

—An Observer, says a correspondent of the Leeds Mercury, has just drawn up a little table, in which he arranges the principal cities and towns of the world according to a classification which has at least the merit of novelty. Each town is considered from the point of view of the trades which are carried on in it. According to these statistics, in Paris there reside the most tailors, upholsterers, bonnet makers, barbers, advocates, and men of letters, men or women. In London we find the most cab and carriage proprietors, engineers printers, booksellers, and—though most people would scarcely credit it—cooks. In Amsterdam we find the most art dealers and money-lenders; Brussels is celebrated as the place where the largest number of boys smoke; it is in Naples that we find the most street porters; we see the largest number of beer-drinkers in Berlin; Florence possesses the most flower-sellers; and Lisbon is celebrated as containing the most bailiffs. If this Observer had only visited this city, he might have added that Montevideo shows the most pretty girls.

—Referring to the Balfour case, the B. A. Herald says,—«The Salta Court of Appeal has decided that the order for the extradition of Jabez Balfour cannot be put in force until the criminal prosecution instituted against him by Mr. Otto Klix has been decided. It is stated that the charge made by Mr. Klix is that Balfour entered into a contract for the purchase of his brewery under the assumed name of Samuel Butler, but we do not see wherein the crime consists in his so doing. It is further stated that Mr. Borthwick of Salta has also made a criminal charge against Balfour.»

—The body of the late Czar has arrived at Moscow, and a very imposing spectacle was made of its exhibition at the Kremlin. Tremendous preparations are being made for the reception and funeral at St. Petersburg. The Duke of York left England for St. Petersburg on Friday. The Prince of Wales and the Duke will return to England immediately after the funeral, but the Princess of Wales will pass the winter months with her widowed sister the Czarina.

—The Superior Tribunal, which is showing laudable activity in its campaign against murderers, has confirmed the sentence of 30 years' imprisonment on Faustino Perez for the treacherous murder, with robbery, of Horacio Ituralde, at San Ramon, on October 31, 1889. In this case again the capital sentence was only avoided because of the minority of the criminal. The youth of the murderers who have been tried recently is certainly noteworthy.

—The «Tiradentes» has left the Maua Dock, and the British steamer Avis has entered it.

—The usual contradictory telegrams are appearing about affairs in Rio Grande. Some pretend to confirm the Federal defeat, others claim it as a federal victory, and others again say that nothing further has occurred than some insignificant skirmishes, which is probably the truth.

—The British cruiser Beagle has left for Maldonado, for gun practice.

—The Pastor Company gives a special performance at the Solis Theatre this evening for the benefit of the victims of the Argentine earthquakes. We understand that they do not return to the San Felipe Theatre.

—The well deserved sentence of death on the murderer Picon was fulfilled yesterday afternoon. We congratulate the President on his firmness in refusing to commute the sentence. We think there can be little doubt that the recent executions and the severity of the authorities towards murder will have a wholesome effect and tend to repress the occurrence of that crime, once so painfully frequent in the Republic.

—The Baring Contract Bill was approved in the Senate yesterday afternoon, in general and in detail, in first reading, without debate.

—A great sensation has been caused in Berlin, says a telegram thence, by the publication of a pamphlet predicting that the Emperor William would meet the same fate as Charles I of England if he persisted in governing in the same manner, and insisting on the people confiding blindly in his policy under the pretence of «divine right.» (We are not surprised, the wonder is that he has not been warned before.)

—The Custom House paid $27,098 into the London Bank yesterday on account of the foreign debt service.

—From London telegrams we learn that on Saturday there was a disastrous fire in the Minories, four large warehouses being destroyed.—The cruiser Calypso, which it was feared was lost in the Bay of Biscay, has turned up safe at Las Palmas.—There was a tremendous explosion in Cannon street on Saturday, owing to a spark from the electric wires lighting an escape from the gas main. The pavement was torn up for a considerable distance. Fortunately no one was hurt, the street being deserted at the moment. —3000 tons of coal are burning in the military deposits at Portsmouth, having taken fire spontaneously.—On Saturday the Bank of England sold £200,000 in Uruguay bonds and values of the Baring liquidation. The Cabinet has resolved to place the abolition of the Lord's veto in the first place in the programme for the coming session.—The reserve fleet has been ordered to put itself under sailing orders, in view of disturbances in the East.

BUENOS AIRES.

—The Minister of Finance has sent a Message to Congress including in the matters to be considered in the extended sessions a bill for the paving of the roads in the port, which will cost $400,000.

—The Public Works Office has been ordered to make surveys in order to ascertain the nature and magnitude of the obstructions at the entrance to the port of Rosario.

—The President of the Republic has commuted the sentence of death passed by the Court Martial on the soldier of the 2nd regiment of cavalry, Pedro Carrasco, who killed Corporal Rivas, to one of 10 years' imprisonment at Staten Island.

—Mr. Luis Sattler, the Agent of the Kosmos line of steamers, committed suicide on Thursday evening at the German Hospital. At 4 o'clock he went to see the director of the hospital, who was his intimate friend, and conversed calmly with him for an hour upon different matters, and took coffee with him. About 5 o'clock, he left the director in his room and went into the garden, and, five minutes afterwards, the report of a pistol was heard proceeding from it. Some of the Hospital attendants ran into the garden to see what had happened and found Mr. Sattler in an arbour lying on his back dead. He had shot himself in the mouth. On a table in the arbour three letters were found, one being addressed to his eldest son, who in an attaché of the Argentine Legation in Chile, another to the director of the Hospital requesting that his funeral might take place from the Hospital, and the third to the Police Commissary of the Section stating his intention to kill himself. Mr. Sattler had been suffering for some time from a painful disease.

—Sr. Joaquin Castellanos has a heavy business on hand in consequence of the scene in the Chamber of Deputies at La Plata on Wednesday. He has to fight four duels, with Lt Col. de la Serna and Sres. Olivares, Lafarrére and Rivas, one after the other! A tribunal of honour was held in La Plata, of which Dr. Tomás R. Garcia, president of the Chamber of Deputies, was one of the members, not with the view of preventing any duel from taking place but deciding in what order they were to be fought. We beg to suggest that, to save time, the plan of the «triangular duel» in Capt. Marryatt's «Peter Simple» should be adopted, with improvements, and that the duellists should be placed in a circle, each of them firing at the man on his right. Honour would be satisfied just as well in this way, and there would be less chance of anybody being hurt.

The Break-down of the Saenz Peña Administration.

Whatever may be the result of the present Cabinet crisis, President Saez Peña is lost and he cannot recover himself. From the first he has been weak, but now politically he is imbecile. This is the view of his conduct which the widest charity can suggest. He has no mind of his own nor has he strength enough to make it possible for a stronger nature to guide him. He is far more dangerous to friends than foes, and his conduct with the former in a strong man would be counted infamous, but with him is attributed to imbecility. So well understood are these facts among public men that few care or dare to risk their reputations by becoming part of a government which is held in contempt by friends and foes of the President. It was pointed out some time since, before the Ministerial resignations, that the crisis now upon us could not be avoided and that all possibility of a reputable Government at the hands of President Saenz Peña was at an end. Since then developments have been even more rapid than was anticipated and already the opinion has become general that the President can serve the country only by retiring from an office which he had never filled and for which he has no adaptability. No one questions his good intentions, his personal excellence, honour, and high character, but the Republic in times like these needs men at the head of affairs who have all these qualifications and in addition to them are statesmen. Many a man who would make a good president of a society to protect animals would not make a good general, and a good Sunday teacher might not make a great president. It is not against the personality of the President that he cannot govern, but it will be against him if he continues to try to do so when he must see that it is a failure. It may as well be understood that President Saenz Peña is eliminated from the problem. If he should remain a while, it will make no difference in the end, and that cannot be far distant. What remains, after this elimination? Vice-President Uriburu would succeed in the due course of things. He would prove a stronger man than the President has shown himself to be, but would he be strong enough to dominate the situation? That would depend much on whether he could unite the friends of the three political leaders of the day General Roca, General Mitre and Dr. Pellegrini. The two first are the leaders of the two great parties, but they are not self-assertive men and this fact gives Dr. Pellegrini a power not explained by his party position. The one man could dominate the situation fully, quickly and permanently is General Roca, but he refuses to enter into any contest, and, while retaining the leadership of the largest political party in the country, does so only to restrain and hold it back from an agressive campaign, and he substitutes compromise. The result of this has not been encouraging. At best it has only secured the postponement of issues which must be confronted and settled; meanwhile, it may be questioned whether the country has not suffered more from the results of a long-continued uncertainty than it would from a prompt meeting and settling of an issue. Every question of high politics which existed when Dr. Saenz Peña was nominated confronts and menaces us at the present moment. What, then has been gained? Only delay, and a delay which has augmented our danger. The situation is serious, more so than at any moment since the President took power. He cannot inspire confidence or mend the situation and it remains a doubtful question whether the Vice President could do so if he were to come into power under present circumstances. There is no disguising the fact that prudence would suggest that, so far as may be, we should prepare to meet troublesome times. - B. A. Herald.

LONDON NOTES.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 10.

A telegram from Shanghai states that booms have been placed by the Chinese across the Min River, thus closing Foochow to trade. At Tientsin the British and German clubs are planing measures of defence, and the European volunteers drill daily. News has reached Yokohama that the Japanese advance guard has crossed the Yalu River, and is now encamped in Manchuria. At the same time Seoul is being strengthened and the garrison has been reinforced by 4,000 men. No importance is attached at Shanghai to the reported rising near Je-Ho.

Mr. Shaw Lefevre visited Grimsby yesterday and inspected various public works in that town. Speaking at a luncheon in the afternoon he referred to several matters of local interest, and then turning to speak of the relations between England and France, expressed a hope that, in the future as in the past, diplomacy would be able to overcome difficulties that might arise. There could be no greater misfortune than a breach of the kindly understanding that had existed for so many years between the two countries.

Sir Walter Foster, Secretary to the Local Government Board, addressed a meeting at Witham last night on the benefits to be expected from the Parish Councils Act. Fifty or sixty thousand directly elected representatives would shortly take the place of non-representative bodies, and he claimed that the educational, material, and moral advantages of this would be enormous.

Mr. H. W. Paul, M.P., spoke in Edinburgh last night on the subject of the House of Lords. One House of Parliament, he said, was quite enough for him, but in any case he desired a reform by which the popular will, as represented in the House of Commons, should prevail.

We regret to state that Earl Grey died yesterday at the age of 92.

Under the presidency of the Rev. Dr. Barrett, of Norwich, the business meeting of the Congregational Union were commenced yesterday at Great George-street Chapel, Liverpool. For his inaugural address the President chose the topic of the Secularisation of the Church, pointing out various tendencies that were making for the secularisation of the work of the Church, and urging the importance of arresting them when they threatened to diminish the spiritual work that it was the function of the Church to perform. In the afternoon a meeting intended specially for women was held, Mrs. William Crosfield in the chair, when papers were contributed by Mrs. W. S. Caine and Miss Balgarnie. Sectional meetings were also arranged, and in the evening a public gathering, president over by Mr. Crosfield, M.P., was addressed by the Rev. J. Guinness Rogers, Principal Cave, and Dr. R. F. Horton

A Correspondent at Exeter reports that the Church Congress, after a ceremonious welcome from the municipality and a discourse from the Bishop of London on «Christian Charity,» began its formal sittings yesterday. The President, the Bishop of Exeter, addressed the gathering on the obligation to seek Christian reunion on a reformation basis, and on the various duties which the present time impressed on the Church. The Congress then divided itself into sections. The most crowded one was occupied with papers on Biblical criticism.

Sir H. Trueman Wood delivered the presidential address last night to the members of the Royal Photographical Society, at the Society's rooms, Pall-mall East.

The London County Council yesterday instructed its Parliamentary and Improvements Committee to consider and report what further steps they deem it advisable should be taken in connection with the Tower Bridge (Southern Approach) Bill. The Special Committee on London Government recommended the Council to express approval of the report of the Unification Commission in its main features, and to approach the Government with a view to early legislation upon the subject; but on the motion of Sir John Lubbock, the consideration of this recommendation was deferred for a month, by which time, it is believed, the evidence taken by the Commission will be accessible to the public. The reduction of the rate to 14d. in the pound for the whole year was agreed to.

The Dairy Show in the Agricultural Hall was largely attended yesterday, the butter-making competitions forming a great attraction.

The Incorporated Law Society commenced its annual conference yesterday at Bristol. Mr. Hunter, the President, took occasion in his opening address to criticise the Finance Act of last session, expressing the opinion that it was so complicated as to be sure to benefit lawyers.

While seventeen hop pickers were driving in a waggon yesterday morning over a level railway crossing to their work, near Canterbury, they were run into by a goods train, with the result that seven of them were killed outright, and the others more or less injured.

News comes from Lorenzo Marques that several whites and a large number of friendly Kaffirs were attacked by the tribesmen under Mabazula yesterday morning and massacred.

Newmarket races were opened yesterday, when the chief event was the meeting of La Flèche and Ravensbury in the race for the Champion Stakes. La Flèche won, the winners in four other cases being—Shemer, the Flying Welter Handicap; None the Wiser, the Newmarket Oaks; Utica, the Clearwell Stakes; and Gold Reef, the Selling Plate. The T. Y. C. Nursery Plate went to Besom, and the Royal Stakes to Florizel II. At Dunstall Park, Bedford Blue secured the Staffordshire Steeplechase.

At an inquest held at Stoke Newington yesterday on the body of Louis Koekoek, a diamond cutter, a remarkable letter left by the deceased was read. It set forth that he had fallen into the hands of sharpers in a gambling house and been ruined and contained pathetic references to his wife and children. In finding that Koekoek had committed suicide while temporarily insane owing to losses by gambling, the jury recommended that the attention of the police should be directed to the house spoken of in the letter.

Mr. T. Brockelbank, of 25, Leadenhall-street, was at the Mansion House, yesterday, fined 125*l.* 5*s.* for acting as a passage broker without having a licence, contrary to the Passenger Act of 1855.

THE CONSECRATION OF A PROTESTANT BISHOP OF MADRID.

MADRID, OCT. 9.

The excitement caused throughout Spain by the consecration of Señor Cabrera as Protestant Bishop of Madrid is in no way subsiding, and the intervention of the Papal Nuncio in the matter has now given rise to a political question in connection with it. The Papal Nuncio in his letter approving the protest of Cardinal Monescillo, Primate of Toledo, affirmed not only that the consecration was sacriligious, but also that it was illegal. This action of the Nuncio is considered by the Liberal Press as an interference by a foreign diplomatist in the internal affairs of the country, and some journals even suggest that the Government should hand the Nuncio his passports. Meanwhile, further protests are being made by all the Spanish bishops, each complaining of the consecration not only as an outrage on the traditional rights of the Spanish Church, but also as a violation of Article XII. of the Constitution. The Liberals, on the other hand, maintain that there has been no violation of the Constitution as it tolerates all forms of worship in private, and the consecration was privately celebrated with closed doors in a building erected by Lord Plunket at his own expense. The Catholics, however, persist that there is a great difference between the toleration of any form of worship in private and the public assumption of the title of bishop, especially when conferred by an archbishop of a foreign country. The debate on the subject on the reassembling of the Cortes is looked forward to with the greatest interest.

OF THE RIVER PLATE.

Having been named sole agents in the River Plate Republics for the sale of the Extract of Virginia Tobacco of the Hungarian Government, we have resolved to sell this sheep-dip under the registered trademark of

"EL ESQUILADOR"

As a powerful and infallible remedy for curing scab in sheep, this extract is superior to all others, for we guarantee a strength of nicotine of 9 o/o, and we point out that the analysis of the well-known chemists Drs. Arata and Arechavaleta gives as much as 9.735 %, so that this Sheep-dip also proves the cheapest, since its great strength allows of a greater dilution with water than any other.

We need not dilate on the great advantages offered by Extract of Tobacco in comparison with drugs and chemical compounds, and the best proof we can give of the superiority of the "Esquilador" over any other dip is the practical result that will be obtained by all those who will apply for a specimen for trial.

"The Professor's Baby"

(A SHORT STORY.)

(Conclusion.)

The doctor went away, leaving the professor much disturbed. A few minutes later the old woman informed him that Miss Riker was at the kitchen door inquiring about Mary. The professor felt that he ought to answer such an inquiry in person.

«I am much troubled,» he said, «for the doctor thinks Mary ought to have a woman's care, and she will not tolerate the cook.»

«Yes, the cook told me,» answered Mabel. After a minute's hesitation she added, «I think Mary would let me take care of her.»

«I am sure she would,» declared the professor warmly. «That is, of course, if—if—it were—possible.»

«I think it might be done,» said Mabel softly.

«Do you? How?»

«Let her come to our house.»

«But would you mother be willing.»

«Oh, yes; she suggested it; she's very fond of Mary.»

«Ah, yes; it is extremely good of you—and your mother. I'll speak to the doctor about it.»

«Oh, thank you!» exclaimed Mabel. How good—I mean—you—well—please let me know what the doctor says.»

And she departed in some haste and in evident confusion. As for the professor, he would have worshipped her more than ever, had that been possible. The doctor came again, and consented to the removal. Indeed, he urged that the child be taken to the Riker house at once, for he himself was at a loss to cope with the disease without a woman's help. So Mary was very carefully wrapped in blankets, and «Uncle Art'ur» carried her to the little bed which had been prepared for her.

«I don't—I don't know how to express my gratitude to you, Miss Riker,» he said, with feeling; «the child has become very dear to me.»

«Don't speak of gratitude, Professor,» said Mabel, frankly, extending her hand; «I love Mary.»

The professor took the proffered hand and they stood gazing silently at one another till Mabel seemed suddenly to recover consciousness, drew her hand away and went about her duties as nurse with bright eyes. At night little Mary became delirious. Sometimes she called for Mabel and sometimes for «Uncle Art'ur.» She told Mabel over and over again that she was the best girl in the world because «Uncle Art'ur» said she was; and she told the professor that he was handsome because Mabel had so decided. And there was much confusion in two anxious minds. In the course of time, however, the disease passed its climax, and youthful nature triumphed. The burning waves of fever broke and rolled backward, leaving the pale face paler than ever with its startling contrast of black, shining eyes and tangled raven hair. After a time little Mary was a convalescent. Then the professor, bending gently over her, said:

»To-morrow my dear little girl shall go home again.»

«An' tate Mabel, too,» she said.

«Ha—well—Mabel will come to see you.»

«Won' do 'less Mabel does too.»

«Well — ah — Mabel's mamma wants her to stay here.»

«Den I stay here, too.»

«And must Uncle Arthur go home without his dear little girl?»

«No. Uckle Art'ur stay here wid Mary and Mabel.»

Mary looked first at Mabel and then at the professor, her piercing eyes showing all her wonder at the unreasonable obstacles in the way of her happiness.

«Mary, dear,» said Mabel softly, «you must go home with your uncle and I'll come and see you every day.»

«Won't do away from you. Won't do away from Uckle Art'ur. Bofe dot to stay wid Mary—or she det sick 'adain an' die.»

And the black eyes became moist, while the lips quivered. The professor straightened up with a sudden snap.

«It might be managed to her satisfaction,» he said.

«How?» asked Mabel, softly.

«You come home with me—for good—as my—wife.»

They were both bending over the child now, looking into her eyes As the professor ceased speakin. Mabel's head bent lower till her lipg touched Mary's cheek. The professor's head sank till be kissed her other cheek. Then lifting their lips from the pale face they let their eyes meet. Mabel very softly put her hand in his, bent to kiss the child again and murmured:

THE END.

SCRAPS

—Before Louis Eleven of France became king, he used to visit a peasant whose garden produced excellent fruit. After his accession, the peasant brought him as a present a very large turnip, which had grown in his garden. The king, remembering the pleasant hours that he had spent under the old man's roof, gave him a thousand crowns. The lord of the village, hearing of this, thought that if one who gave a paltry turnip received so large a reward, one who gave a really valuable present would receive a still larger reward. He therefore offered a splendid horse. The king accepted it, and calling for the big turnip, said: «This cost me a thousand crowns; I give it to you in return for you horse.»
